

PLANTS OF THE
SEATTLE JAPANESE GARDEN
2023

Acknowledgments

The SJG Plant Committee would like to thank our Seattle Parks and Recreation (SPR) gardeners, SPR gate staff, as well as the Arboretum Foundation Event and Programs Managers. Gardeners Andrea Gillespie, Jose Gonzales and Senior Gardener Peter Putnicki worked throughout the winter and spring to ensure that the garden was ready for the garden re-opening in March.

The Seattle Japanese Garden continues to be a challenging work in progress, as plants continue to grow and age and need extensive maintenance, or removal & replacement. In the summer of 2022, the Orchard area was completely redone to address ongoing drainage problems and to replace compacted soil. To accomplish this, the cherry, plum and crab apples trees were removed. Many yards of new top soil were brought in and berms were created for new trees which will be planted this fall. Pete also redesigned the southern end of the Orchard area and created a new planting area featuring Miscanthus grasses, Liriope, Campanula and Hibiscus.

Visitors to the garden may notice several new plants in the garden – these include: Sumac typhina, Stewartia pseudocamellia, Rhapsiolepis indica ‘Ballerina’, and Camellia sasanqua ‘Kangiro’. ‘Kangiro’ originated in Japan around 1950 and has double, red flowers with golden-yellow stamens. Rhapsiolepis indica ‘Ballerina’ is a dwarf cultivar growing only to 2’ tall. It has deep rose-pink flowers in spring and in winter the leaves take on attractive reddish tinge.

The Plant Committee (Eleanore Baxendale, Patti Brawer, Corinne Kennedy, Kathy Lantz, chair, Pamela Miller, Aleksandra Monk, and Shizue Prochaska) revised and updated the 2023 Plant Booklet. Aleksandra Monk continues to be the chief photographer of the plants in the garden and posts information about plants in bloom and seasons of interest to the SJG Community Blog and related SJG Bloom Blog. Corinne Kennedy is a frequent contributor to the SJG website.

THE JAPANESE GARDEN

Seattle, Washington

Welcome to the Seattle Japanese Garden in the Washington Park Arboretum. Thank you for supporting the garden through your visit. It lists the garden's plants as of 2023, and was created to increase your knowledge and enjoyment of your visit. The plant collection changes during the year, so this booklet is updated annually to reflect those changes.

How to use this Plant Booklet:

The garden is divided into 28 areas that are assigned letters of the alphabet. These areas are shown on the Garden Map on the back cover. The booklet contains three lists:

1. Detailed Plant List by Area - lists the plants within each area of the garden. In Areas A – Z, plants are listed alphabetically by Genus (specifically, by their full scientific/botanical name). In Areas ZZE & ZZW, they're listed by their location as you walk through the area. Refer to the Garden Map and this list when you see a plant that you'd like to identify. This list contains description and location information that will help you determine the correct plant, identified by its scientific name. Many of the plants have been photographed and are included in the SJG Bloom Blog -- <http://sigbloom2012.wordpress.com>. The Seattle Japanese Garden Plant List Booklet is updated annually and is available at <http://seattlejapanesegarden.org/resources>.
2. Summary Alphabetical List with Location Information – a list of plants by scientific name that lists all garden areas where each plant is located. Refer to this when you know a plant's Genus and want to find it in the garden.
3. Summary Genus List with Japanese Words – a list of plants by scientific name that provides information on Japanese naming – specifically, Japanese Syllable, Japanese Name and English Transliteration.

Seattle Parks and Recreation manages and maintains the Seattle Japanese Garden and its plant collection, in partnership with the Arboretum Foundation and the Prentice Bloedel Arboretum Unit 86.
